

THE ABSTRACT WHITE

Located on the west side of Ibiza, the essence of the Spanish island has inspired the design of this small duplex, resulting in a serene and orderly identity. The owners wanted to reduce the interior design to the essential without renouncing the spirit of a Mediterranean lifestyle. Therefore, Francesc Rifé Studio focused on whites and controlling the excess of light on an open-to-nature terrace.

Inside, the palette of whites extends to the lacquered walls and doors, as well as along the floors. Only oak wood is revealed behind a large sliding door that shows one space while hiding another. As a result, the main stage is quiet and comes to life through the contrasting undercover areas and shelves. In the living is an L-shaped shelf which functions as a long desk all the way to the window. The use of curtains creates calm and softens the natural light.

The interior is defined by the surfaces of elm wood that have been applied in the kitchen and a lounge-dining area to host family and friends gatherings.

Furniture by Fredericia, Arkoslight, HAY, and bespoke pieces designed by the studio.
Photos: Javier Márquez

