

COMMAND CENTRES

The latest systems that bring function to the heart of the home

→ DINNER PARTY

Giuseppe Bavuso's Soul for Ernestomeda is intended for entertaining as much as it is for cooking. Clever features include a built-in table that swivels from bistro size to full dining, and a cutting board that slides along the counter from sink to stovetop. With ample storage, the flexible system is available in a wide range of melamine, laminate, metal and more. ernestomedatoronto.com

→ MODERN LINES

Gentle curves, sloped angles and a glossy finish give Flux Swing by Scavolini a decidedly futuristic aesthetic (a matte finish is also available). Easy-to-grip recesses in the flat-front cabinet doors and drawers keep sightlines uninterrupted, while end units offer opportunities for display. Ideal for open floor plans, the series includes coordinating shelving and storage units for an adjacent living room. scavolini.com

← RAISE A GLASS

Valcucine's first glass kitchen, Artematica, turns 30 this year, and to celebrate the Italian brand exhibited a special concept version with nature-inspired digitally printed textures (shown is Butterfly Wings) and a hefty sink made from a single slab of Cardoso stone. The standard Artematica system still maintains its innovative all-aluminum framing and is offered in a variety of textured surfaces and glass finishes. valcucine.com

↑ PERSONAL GARDEN

Nature Kitchen by Francesc Rifé Studio for Mobalco incorporates a vegetable garden to bring a little grow space indoors. Housed in granite and metal planter boxes, the in-house nursery is the Spanish brand's response to the changing nature of kitchens, specifically easy access to fresh produce. Handle cutouts on the walnut cabinet doors and drawers eschew the need for hardware, keeping the look refined. mobalco.com
